Event details:

What if we could travel back to not-so-distant but still past times? At the Museum of Life in the Polish Peoples Republic, you will experience the atmosphere of absurdity of the past era, including watching a movie in a 1970s cinema, attempting a long-distance call in a 1960s telephone booth, listening to a speech by a party dignitary, or going on vacation to Bulgaria with the whole family in a Fiat 126. But that's not all – on a visit to the museum, you will see what life was like in an M-2 apartment, hear the type of music that was listened to, and taste water from a seltzer bottle.

Practical information:

We start at 6 p.m., last entry at midnight, closing at 12.30 a.m. Reservations for visits are not possible. There is a café in the museum, open until 12.30 a.m.
