Event details

The artistic practice of Natalia LL (1937–2022) encompassed photography, performance, video, and installation. Her works, including the 1970s piece “Consumer Art”, explored corporeality, identity, and the role of women, challenging gender stereotypes and critiquing consumerism. Less known are her drawings and paintings, which the artist considered her primary form of expression. The exhibition at Galeria Art Rytel will showcase both her works from the 1970s and 1980s as well as her early glass pieces from the 1960s, illustrating the evolution of her art and key themes.
